"Early in the Winter, I took a severe cold which developed into an obstinate, hacking cough, very painful to endure and troubling me day and night, for nine weeks, in spite of numerous remedies. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral being recommended me, I began to take it, and inside of 24 hours, I was relieved of the tickling in my throat. Before I finished the bottle, my cough was nearly gone. I cannot speak too highly of its excellence."—Mrs. E. BOSCH, Eaton, Ohio.

SUNSET IN THE WOODS.

Here as I lie 'neath shady trees,
In rustling woodland sweet and green,
The sun's last rays are creeping through
And lighting up the shadowy scene.

The voices of the wood sing songs
That cheer the sad and gloomy mind.
The wind comes softly through the trees
And leaves them whisp'ring far behind.

A placid stream runs purling by,
And at its murmuring edges near
The grand old oaks stand close and sway
While gazing in its bosom clear.

Through all the wood the glowing lights
And colors of the setting sun
Are touching leaf and sprig and trunk
As o'er the quiet stream they run.

A yellow leaf comes flutt'ring down
Into its gently flowing tide.
A cricket's chirping in the grass
Is softly echoing far and wide.

The golden tints on forest leaves
Have slowly faded with the day.
The shadows in the evening light
Grow long and blend and die away.
—Charles N. Myers in Detroit Free Press.

"JACOB AND ME."

"Me" was Rupert, and it was early in the summer that he begged to have his hair cut.

"It's so hot and tickly and tangly and boversome, and I'm old enough to look like a boy," he said, which was true. His mother put her arms around him—they were sitting in the big wicker chair by the parlor window—and held him as if she would never let him go.

"I want my baby as he is," she said, which was also true. There was a little silence.

It was a low, little room, full of quiet and half darkness. There were some well filled bookshelves, well chosen pictures, just enough pretty and more or less worn rugs and cushions and a bowl of garden roses on a low table. The child leaned his head against his mother's shoulder, the despised hair a bright tangle against her dark gown and gazed adoringly into her face, but she was looking out of the window across the meadow, where the black trees and the slender spire of St. Michael and All Angels' were clearly defined against the cool twilight sky. There was a churchyard around St. Michael's, but it was in the shadow. The twilight deepened. A cowbell tinkled in the distance, and a young man and two girls with pretty shirt waists and tennis racquets went chattering laughingly by.

"That's the boy that plays the organ at St. Michael's," said Rupert. "I go in sometimes to hear him do it. He likes it. When he isn't playing, he is talking to those three nice girls in the little house down the road. They each have a scrapbook, and the litlte boy has a scrapbook, and they put everyfing in"—

He stopped suddenly, his gaze followed his mother's across the meadow, and he slipped one soft arm around her neck, while she took possession of the little brown hand and kissed it gently. An old woman came slowly down the road—an old woman, with straight, white hair, blue calico gown and red handkerchief twisted around her neck. She was driving a flock of clamoring ducks and geese, and Rupert's interest was at once awakened.

"Buy me one, mamma, one of the big white ones. It would be such good company, and I'll never say another word about the hair." It was an odd fancy and odder bargain, but it ended in Mrs. Cardell's most promising gander, very much surprised and named Jacob, being shut up in Mrs. Ware's chicken house for the night.

He did prove "good company." With a string around his leg for safety, he followed Rupert hither and yon. Together they planted a garden and dug it up from time to time to see 'how it grew;" together they hunted for frogs in the meadow, and together they waded in the brook below the hill; together they sat on the steps when it was time for "mamma" to come home, holding a long and rather one sided conversation.

In September a plan began to grow in Rupert's little head, and he told Jacob all about it.

Mamma had begun to teach in town now and was away all day. Julia, the maid, could be very good when she chose, but the day Rupert came tumbling into the kitchen, his feet very muddy, dragging after him poor bewildered Jacob by the length of his string, trying to explain all in a moment, she said:

"Did I ever see the like of such a bothersome child, and the pesky beast"—and picked them up unceremoniously by the left wing and the right arm and put them down on the doorstep. Rupert cried a little, and Jacob went to sleep on one leg, and presently Julia repented, spread a nice slice of graham bread with apple sauce and presented it as a peace offering, explaining that she had just scrubbed the kitchen and was ill tempered into the bargain "along of reasons you can't comprehend. And tell me about the plan, darlin."

Rupert sniffed, ate some of the bread and fed the rest to Jacob, talking all the time.

"Mamma's birthday and St. Michael and All Angels' day come just the same—next Saturday—and papa used to buy a goose and apple sauce and a cake with candies. Twenty-eight it was last year. This year makes 29, and the big punch bowl full of Michaelmas daisies—papa used to go way into the country when we were in the flat in town, but here the meadow is full of them. Jacob and me found them—and candles in the silver candlesticks and dinner cards. Could you paint dinner cards, Julia? The boy that plays the organ could do them, I think," but Julia was thinking of something else, her forehead wrinkled up, her pale blue eyes gazing into indefinite distance.

Rupert wondered suddenly why Julia "didn't go on and finish being pretty." Her hair was soft and wavy and brown, and though she twisted it up tightly twice a day it generally rippled loosely above a broad white forehead. Her eyes were very light, but shaded by long dark lashes, and her cheeks were the color of wild roses. Beyond this her beauty ceased. Her mouth was very wide; her waist was very big; she herself was very long, and her fingers were bent quite crooked with rheumatism. Rupert tried to straighten them out as she went on talking.

"It's a cake you're wantin, and apple sauce and daisies—them's easy got—and candles. There's a plenty left from Christmas, but a goose'd be a big item on the bill, an it as small as it has to be, an a bit of steak here, an a handful of mutton for a stew there, an a lilliputian roast of a Sunday. There's Jacob now."

Rupert stood up suddenly and gathered Jacob into his arms. He was growing very heavy.

"We're going to find the boy that plays the organ," he said with dignity.

He found him on the piazza of the little house down the road, deep in scrapbooks and newspaper clippings, with two of the girls, while the other girl was making lemonade and putting in a word now and then. They were all enthusiastically discussing theatricals for the benefit of a local charity, but looked up and smiled as "Jacob and me" came up the path.

"I want to talk to the boy that plays the organ," he said. They all laughed, which was very embarrassing and made Rupert's little face very red in its tangle of golden hair. He put down Jacob and hauled in on the string until Jacob lost his equilibrium entirely, and then he let it out again. They persuaded him to have some of the lemonade, which he liked immensely, but "the boy" took him unceremoniously up on his knee and asked how old he was, which is a blow to would be dignity. Rupert said "Five," wriggled away and sat on the steps and told his story. General interest was aroused.

"Let's all help, and you make the prettiest dinner cards you can."

"I will," said the boy.

"I'm very much obliged," said Rupert, gathering up Jacob, "and you all come. You look so pretty it will be like a party. Julia won't mind." They all accepted.

Friday afternoon Rupert gathered daisies in the meadow, and Jacob helped—at least he looked out for stray frogs and was "good company." They took them home and rested and had their supper of bread and milk on the back porch—Mrs. Ware was away until evening on Fridays—and then disappeared down the road to the village. By and by Rupert went back to the meadow and gathered the rest of the daisies alone.

The sky behind St. Michael's spire was rose color and gold, and a most slender silver moon shone over the tops of the trees. When he had carried the daisies across the meadow, the sunset had faded to a silver gray, the moon had gone, one big star was reflected in the brook below the hill, and it was growing very cold. Rupert sat down by the stone wall, and two tears rolled down his cheeks. The windows of the little church glowed with soft light.

The sexton was preparing for Friday evensong. Suddenly the world seemed very big and wide, and the child lay face down in the grass and cried and cried. There the boy found him, and picking him up carried him and the daisies home and told Julia to put him to bed, while he himself put the daisies to sleep in a tub in the cellarway. Then he had to race across the meadow to be in time to play.

The next morning he brought over the dinner cards—even Rupert was satisfied with them — and staid a long while in the kitchen sticking the 29 pink candles on the birthday cake and talking quietly and sensibly all the time. The market man came in like a flash and threw a goose on the table. It was marked "Paid." Julia was bewildered. "The boy" disclaimed all knowledge of it and went home.

He came over again in time to set the table. He knew just how to settle the daisies in the big punch bowl and put things just right, with daisies and a dinner card at each plate, and all the time the goose smelled very good. Rupert was afraid it would "give them away just too soon," but it was a perfect surprise—the pretty table, the three pretty girls, "the boy," the daisies, the goose, the apple sauce, the birthday cake, the candles and Rupert beaming away from the other end of the table.

"Who planned it all?" said Mrs. Ware when they were in the little parlor later on, with a gay little fire on the hearth and Michaelmas daisies showing bravely from every point of vantage. "The boy" was playing softly on the piano, the girls were in a pretty group on the hearth rug, wondering why they had never appreciated Mrs. Ware before, and she and Rupert were in the big wicker chair in the broad firelight.

"Jacob and me planned it all," Rupert answered. "'The boy' did most of it, and the girls were kind, and they look so pretty, and the winter was coming, and Julia doesn't like us in the kitchen, and soon the frogs will be gone—the goose was Jacob! I couldn't eat any myself."

There was an odd little silence after this until "the boy" began to play Chopin's impromptu in A flat.

The next day Rupert had his hair cut quite close, "like a boy." Mrs. Ware gathered it up as it fell, took it home and laid it tenderly in a little drawer. She was smiling, and yet there were tears in her eyes. She was thinking of "Jacob and me."—Churchman.

The Violet.

The violet does best in a moderately rich, moisture looking loamy compost, with no rank manure within reach of the roots. The planting should be firmly done, crowding of the plants not allowed and but little space between the lights and the plants permitted. Therefore the foundation of the bed must not be of a yielding character, and for this purpose nothing is worse than manure or tree leaves.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

HER FATHER A LITERARY MAN.

Not That He Had Written Anything, but It Would Look Well In an Obituary.

"I am exceedingly sorry to disturb you at such a time and upon such an errand," remarked the reporter as the front door was opened in response to his ring, "but I have been sent to see if you would not kindly furnish me with some facts regarding Mr. Blank. We wish them for an obituary."

"Certainly," responded the woman. Then she turned and called out loudly: "Mamie, Mamie, here's a reporter. Come down and tell him what an honest man your father was."

There seemed to be nothing of unusual interest in Mr. Blank's history until the reporter inquired the nature of Mr. Blank's business.

"He was a literary man," replied the woman.

"Indeed! What did he write?"

"Well, I really—I really don't think he ever wrote any books."

"Newspaper man?"

"No," remarked the woman, "but his father was. My grandfather was editor of the Sussex Bugle Note. You probably know the paper?"

"May I ask what your father did as a literary man? Did he edit or revise any publications? Was he connected with any trade paper—alman—I beg your pardon—directory or guide?"

"No," said the woman earnestly.

By this time the reporter was not a little perplexed. "Really," he said after a pause, "I should like to make my report complete. Can you not be more specific regarding your father's literary work?"

"Well, the truth is," responded the woman, "he was engaged by Galley & Form, publishers of the 'Compendium of Universal Knowledge.' He was their sole agent in Connecticut and sold 10,000 sets last summer on commission. Of course you needn't say anything about that. Just put him down as a literary man. It will be perfectly satisfactory to the family."—New York Herald.

FROM TRIFLING CIRCUMSTANCES.

Indications In the Boy's Life That Prove Prophetic of His Future.

Carlyle says that you can tell how a man would do anything from the way he sings. However this may be, it is certainly true in nine cases out of ten that you can tell what sort of a man the boy will make from seeing him at play when obliged to stay indoors without a companion. Lord (then plain William) Armstrong, the famous engineer, was a delicate boy, and one winter when 6 years old was confined to the house for months. To amuse himself he set several old spinning wheels in motion by weights descending on strings from top to bottom of the house over the staircase railing.

Friends and relatives brought mechanical toys for the litlte prisoner, which he at once pulled to pieces. It was not satisfactory to him to see "Jack" jump up in the "box" when the lid was raised. He would know what made "Jack" spring up.

One day, while fishing near a rustic mill, the water wheel attracted his attention, because it was fed by a rill above which descended from a height of nearly 100 feet. Seeing that only 20 feet of the descent was utilized, he pondered the question, "Why not use the whole descent of the stream as a motive power?" A swinging lamp in a church suggested to Galilei the pendulum as a means of measuring time, and Armstrong saw in the descending rill power for a hydraulic crane. He invented one, and it attracted the attention of leading engineers.

Lord Armstrong's name is now, as most of our readers know, identified with huge rifled cannon, the manufacture of large projectiles and the building of mighty vessels of war.—Scottish American.

Multiplication of the Typewriter.

"The coming man will not write nearly so much as the man of this age," said Professor Charles Whiteford of Philadelphia at the Normandie, "and yet it must not be inferred that the art of penmanship is going to drop into early desuetude. The cheaper typewriters become the less chirography there will be. Professional men of any standing rarely do any writing now, save perhaps to indite their own signatures. In newspaper offices three-fourths of the reportorial staff compose their 'stories' on machines, and not a few of the more dignified editors have learned to play the keys. Handwriting will linger a great deal longer in the country and smaller towns than in the big cities, for the same reason that the candle and kerosene lamp linger longest in the former localities."—Washington Post.

A Messroom Pun.

James Payn recalls in a certain messroom the conversation after dinner turning upon a Captain Mosely in the regiment, who had the gift of prophecy, though it must be confessed it was mainly limited to sporting events. A guest, who had drunk quite as much champange as was good for him, expressed incredulity to his next neighbor, who, with a most courteous bow, observed, "Well, that is an opinion I can hardly discuss with impartiality, because I am Moseley." "I do not doubt that at all," was the unexpected rejoinder, "but are you mosely right?"—San Francisco Argonaut.

The Sleep of Horses.

When the horse sleeps, it is said that one ear is directed forward, why is not known. A writer in The English Mechanic thinks this is to guard against danger, being a survival of their originally wild habits. He says: "Watch a horse asleep through the window of his stable and make a faint noise to the front. That ear will be all attention, and probably the other will fly round sharply to assist. Now let him go to sleep again and make the same noise to the left. The forward ear still will keep guard, with possibly a lightning flick round, only to resume its former position."

A Merry Christmas.

The INDEX-TRIBUNE wishes its one thousand readers a merry Christmas.

THE GRAND JURY,

Its Labors Completed—The Report in Full.

Recommendations in Regard to the County Jail and Office of School Superintendent.

To the Honorable, the Superior Court of the County of Sonoma, State of California.

We, the Grand Jury, have completed our labors according to your instructions and respectfully submit the following report:

J. L. Winans was by the judge appointed foreman and called the meeting to order and appointed J. D. Barnett as Clerk, On motion O. T. Baldwin was appointed to expert the books and accounts of the different officers of the county, and his compensation was fixed at $5 per diem.

Don Mills and J. D. Barnett were appointed a committee to examine into the general management of all the affairs of the county, and their compensation was fixed at $2 per diem and mileage as allowed jurors.

We visited in a body all the different offices of the county and also the poor farm and hospital and found them all in excellent condition and reflecting great credit upon the officers in charge. Our committee also visited the farm and County Hospital and all the county offices as well as the jail building and yard for the purpose of inquiring more particularly and thoroughly into the details of the management of the county affairs than we could hope to do in a body and at less expense.

We would respectfully recommend to the Board of Supervisors that a division fence be erected at the poor farm separating the low lands used for vegetables from the vineyard and orchard; also that the low lands be underdrained with tiles as the old wood drains seem to be about worn out; also that the vineyard as is on the low damp land be removed and the land devoted to such crops as may be useful to the farm.

We also recommend to the Board of Supervisors that they take such measures as seem necessary to make the County Jail safe and secure and effectually prevent the escape of prisoness, and would respectfully call their attention to section 1399 of the penal code relating to what rooms, etc., a County Jail must contain in order to keep different classes of prisoners separate, and submit that our jail is not up to the requirements of the law.

We would further recommend that a suitable place for cooking food for prisoners be provided outside the jail building and inside the jail yard as a necessary sanitary measure.

We would further recommend that a wire connection be made between the jail and the Sheriff's office with electric bells or telephone attachments as being very necessary for the safety of the officers and also for the convenience and dispatch of business.

We would also recommend that the Board of Supervisors have Ordinance 28 pertaining to licenses so amended as to require the Tax Collector to file with the Board of Supervisors at the end of each quarter a statement showing all places and persons in the county subject to pay a liquor license, the amount each person has paid during the quarter and the amount each person is delinquent at the end of each quarter; also that the Tax Collector be required to mail a copy of such amended ordinance to each liquor dealer in the county and to require that all licenses be paid strictly in advance.

We would also recommend that the Assessor's office be removed from the room now occupied by that office to the room directly under it in the lower story of the Court House and that said lower room be finished off in a proper manner before moving; also that one half of the present Assessor's office be fitted up and made a part of the District Attorney's office to be used as a consultation room and a waiting room for witnesses and the other half of said room be used for a Court Reporter's Room; also that speaking tube connections be made between the Court Room, District Attorney's office, Sheriff's office and County Clerk's office in order to facilitate and expedite our court proceedings,

We would also recommend that the cupola and rooms and stairways approaching the cupola be cleaned and repaired and suitable doors or barracades be placed in the openings to garrets and store rooms to prevent heedless persons from going into those places without permission.

We have carefully examined into the management of all the different offices of the county and find the business of the county being conducted in a careful and painstaking manner and we believe that the officers without exception are performing their duties in a conscientious, businesslike way and we desire to extend to them our thanks for their uniform courtesy and assistance to us in pursuing our labors.

We would respectfully recommend that the Board of Supervisors require that each Justice of the Peace of the county shall have filed his last quarterly report of business transacted in court before allowing any bills of either the Justice or Constable of any township for fees or mileage so that the experts employed to examine the receipts and disbursements of the county may be able to check up those bills from the records in the Court House and for the better convenience of the Board of Supervisors.

We made a careful examination of the office of Superintendent of Schools and found the business of that office well managed and reflecting great credit on the officer in charge. In our opinion there is altogether too much clerical work required of the Superintendent of Schools in keeping the accounts of the different school districts of the county, acting as Secretary of the Board of Education, requiring an endless amount of time and labor that otherwise might be better applied to the direct work of superintending the school work.

We also believe that the County Board of Education is an expensive luxury and does not furnish the people an adequate return for the outlay.

These conditions are, however, the fault of our laws and not of the officers incumbent. In this connection the following resolution was adopted by the Grand Jury:

Resolved, That we, the Grand Jury of Sonoma county, recommend that our representatives in the State Legislature be requested to use their influence to secure amendments to our laws as will abolish County Boards of Education.

The following resolution was also unanimously adopted.

Resolved, That it is the sense of the Grand Jury of the County of Sonoma, State of California, that any law that permits men and women to enter into marriage relations by contract, and without procuring a license or written consent of parents or legal guardians is a source of growing evil and ought to be repealed at the earliest possible moment, and that we earnestly request our representatives in the State Legislature to use every effort in their power to bring about the much-needed reform.

We have carefully considered seven different criminal cases and examined about forty different witnesses. We have found three true bills for felony. We have also recommended that the District Attorney prosecute one case for misdemeanor. Respectfully submitted,

JOHN BOYD THACHER A WITNESS.

He Fully Verifies a Disputed World's Fair Award.

John Boyd Thacher is laconic and decisive in his statements. During the lively campaign just closed in New York, this marked him especially as chairman of the Democratic State Committee. It was equally true of him as Chairman of the Executive Committee on Awards at the World's Fair. This is the positive and sententious way in which he verifies in an official letter, the honors won by Dr. Price's Baking Powder: "I herewith enclose you an official copy of your award, which in due time will be inscribed in the diploma and forwarded." Thus the question respecting the award, raised by an envious New York rival, is settled beyond cavil. This same rival by the way is widely advertising an award for itself. The official records prove this claim wholly false as they show the New York pretender was not so much as an exhibitor at the World's Fair.

MEAGHER MURDER TRIAL.

Mrs. Elizabeth Bryan Acquitted

Elizabeth Bryan, charged with the murder of her blind sister, Nancy Meagher, was acquitted in Judge Crawford's Court, Santa Rosa, last Tuesday. The Judge charged the jury to bring in a verdict of "Not Guilty," on the grounds of insufficient evidence to convict and the twelve true and tried men followed out his instructions. The cases against her sixteen-year-old son Joe Bryan, and her sister, Mrs. Fowler, charged with complicity in the crime, will be called up Monday in the same court, and will no doubt be dismissed.

Read What They Say.

From David S. Jordan, A. M., Ph. D., President Indiana University, now of California: "I take pleasure in recommending Johnson's Revised Cyclopædia—one of the very best works of its kind which I know. It is especially modern and accurate in its subject matter. It treats disputed subjects fairly, and its statements and conclusions are almost fully abreast of the most recent knowledge and discovery. It is less bulky than some other cyclopædias but the busy man wants facts, and not rhetoric, from a book of this kind. It ought to have a wide sale in the schools and among the homes. A library however elaborate otherwise would be incomplete without it. A college, an academy or a public school deprived of this prolific source of knowledge must ever remain in the rear of those thus properly equipped. The family reared without the aid of such advantageous instruction must take its place in society in a lower scale of intelligence than that which has had daily access to such treasures of knowledge In a word, all professions, occupations and spheres of society in the present age demand a book of universal reference—a want created by the habit of general reading and the spirit of universal inquiry. I conclude, therefore, by awarding to Johnson's Cyclopædia the merit of truthfulness, of unbiassed fairness, of comprehensiveness and of expensiveness and believe it to be fully abreast of the times and that it eminently meets the wants of the period.

From Hon. John D. Philbrick, L. L. D., Supt. Schools in Boston: "It is in a remarkable degree interesting, accurate, useful and fresh, and is a work which every scholar must desire and at the same time I should like to see it in every household. It is a genuine treasure of science and knowledge."

If you want the latest and best Cyclopædia printed readers, get Johnson's.

Sheriff's Sale.

Under Execution and Order of Sale on Foreclosure of Mortgage.

W. B. Waldron, Plaintiff.
vs.
H. C. Manuel, Nettie Manuel, John Doe, Richard Roe and Jane Doe, Defendants.

By virtue of an Execution and Order of Sale on Foreclosure of Mortgage, issued out of the Superior Court of the County of Sonoma, State of California, on the 18th day of December, A. D. 1894, on a judgment and decree of said Superior Court, rendered on the 14th day of December, 1894, in favor of W. B. Waldron, plaintiff, and against H. C. Manuel and Nettie Manuel, defendants, for the sum of Fifteen hundred ninety-nine and 61-100 ($1,599.61) dollars, lawful money of the United States, with interest thereon at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum from the date of December 14th, 1894, and for the further sum of $125.00, attorney's fees and for costs of suit, amounting to the sum of $24.25, and decreeing that the premises described in plaintiff's complaint be sold and the proceeds applied to the expense of said sale, the costs of said action, and the debt due plaintiff from defendants, the whole amount aggregating $1,748.86, lawful money of the United States, and the same to be at interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum until paid.

Now, therefore, in pursuance of said judgment and decree and execution issued, and to me directed, I have levied upon the property authorized to be sold under and by virtue of said decree, the description and particular boundaries of which are as follows, to-wit:

All those certain lots, pieces or parcels of land, situated, lying and being in the County of Sonoma, State of California, and bounded and particularly described as follows, to-wit:

All those certain strips and pieces of land formerly known as streets, and all those certain lots situated and being in the former City of Sonoma, County of Sonoma, State of California, as designated and numbered upon the official map of said former City of Sonoma, and more particularly described as follows, to-wit:

Lots two hundred and twenty-seven (227), two hundred and twenty-eight (228), two hundred and thirty-three (233), two hundred and thirty-four (234), two hundred and thirty-five (235), two hundred and thirty-six (236), and also those former streets between lots numbered 233 and 236, 234 and 235, 234 and 334, 227 and 307, being the same premises conveyed to H. C. Manuel by L. B. and Nanie L. Lawrence, his wife, by deed dated August 23rd, 1884, and recorded in Liber 93 of Deeds at page 46, of the records of the County Recorder of said Sonoma County.

Together with all and singular the tenements, hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in anywise appertaining. In accordance with said order and command, notice is hereby given that on at 1:30 o'clock P. M. of that day, in the City of Santa Rosa, County of Sonoma, in front of the Court House (Fourth street entrance), I will offer for sale at Public Auction and sell to the highest and best bidder for cash, lawful money of the United States, the above described property, or so much thereof as may be necessary to raise sufficient money to satisfy said judgment with interest and costs.

SAM I. ALLEN, Sheriff.

President Foster and General Passenger Agent Whiting of the San Francisco & North Pacific Railway visited the various stations on the line of the road in this valley last Sunday. A minstrel troupe has been organized in this place with the following local talent: Jas. Weems, Chris Yager, John Wilson, Jas. B. Small, Clark Gaines, Frank Weems, Claude Johnson, Frank Young and Wm. Wyatt. It is the intention of the members to give a performance at Union Hall in the near future.

Drs. E. H. & Geo. C. Pardee, Oculists and Aurists, are still at 526 Montgomery street, corner of Clay, San Francisco. All reports by hotel runners and others that Dr. E. H. Pardee is dead or that Dr. Geo. C. Pardee has retired from practice because he is Mayor of Oakland are false. *

Over fifty hunters were out in quest of ducks in the marshes bordering on Sonoma Creek between Sears' Point and McGill's station, last Sunday. Ducks and geese, which had been flying in by the thousands during the week, suddenly disappeared on Sunday, and he was a lucky hunter, indeed, who secured a pair of mallard, widgeon, canvass back or teal. But for all that an incessant banging of shotguns was kept up throughout the day, and at times it seemed as though the seat of war between China and Japan had been transferred to the Sonoma marshes. Divers, mud hens, meadow larks and black birds were the principal species of game secured on that day.

Oysters on the half-shell; also, fine fresh fish every Thursday afternoon at the Union Market. Cornelius & Yager. *

SUDDEN DEATH.

Mrs. W. H. Hyde Expires While Sleeping.

Mrs. Jennie O. Hyde, wife W. H. Hyde, a wealthy farmer of this valley, died very suddenly last Sunday morning between one and two o'clock.

The deceased retired at a late hour Saturday night in apparently the best of health, and some time afterward her husband, who was sitting in another room by a fire attending to one of his legs which was broken a few years ago and which was too troublesome to allow him to sleep, heard his wife cry out in distress. He went to her assistance immediately. When he reached her bedside she was dead. The cause of her sudden taking off was heart disease. Mrs. Hyde was in Sonoma on Saturday afternoon and her sudden death was a great surprise to her friends and acquaintances.

The deceased was married to Mr. Hyde, who is an old resident of this valley, about two years ago and was a very estimable lady.

She was a native of Massachusetts and aged 71 years.

The funeral took place in San Francisco on Wednesday, the remains having been removed to that city for interment.

CASE OF YOUNG EWELL.

The Head and Front of His Offending Was His Inability to Pay a Bill.

The Chronicle of last Monday published a sensational article about Edwin C. Ewell of this place, who has been a student at the Stanford University the past four years. The article sought to leave the impression that he is dishonest, but it does not say so in plain words, but for all that it does a great injustice to a young man who has been struggling through poverty for the past six years to gain an education. Last May in order to earn money to help him along in his studies he accepted the business management of the Sequoia, the college paper. In tendering him the position it was understood that the income of the paper was to be his own. The editor of the paper was Wm. W. Guth, and young Ewell agreed to pay him $50 per month for his services. Crocker & Co., of San Francisco printed the paper, the cost of which eat up most of the income. Being inexperienced in business the young manager became indebted to Crocker & Co. in the sum of $604. Careless and oversanguine of his ability to pay he gave that firm a draft on the San Mateo Bank which was dated five days in advance, explaining to his troublesome creditors that there was no money in the bank at the time, but that he expected to deposit to his credit, before the expiration of the five days, sufficient money to meet the obligation. In this he was disappointed, and when he went to the store of Crocker & Co., in San Francisco, to explain his inability to pay the firm became suspicious and placed detective Curtin on his track. This act was uncalled for on the part of the creditor as was subsequently proven when the bill was paid in full. It was simply a business transaction with a careless young man on the one side and an exacting firm on the other. Young Ewell was not guilty of a criminal act. His offense was simply running in debt and taking his chances on an uncertain income to pay that debt.

We understand that he will continue to manage the Sequoia and that he still retains the confidence of the faculty of the college and his fellow students.

Christmas Gifts.

As Christmas approaches the task of selecting suitable presents for relatives and friends becomes more complicated. In order to help the people of Sonoma and Vallejo Townships along in this matter the enterprising firms of F. Duhring and J. A. Poppe of this place and Hale Bros. of Petaluma have laid in a splendid assortment of holiday goods, and through these columns the general public are invited to give them a call and make their selections. These firms are actually offering holiday goods cheaper than they can be bought in San Francisco.

Social Hop on Christmas Eve.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Harrison of the Mervyn Hotel, Glen Ellen, will give a social hop on Monday evening, December 24th, (Christmas Eve.) As there will be nothing going on in Sonoma on that evening a large number of our party-loving people expect to attend. The parties given at the Mervyn are always sociable and enjoyable affairs and attract people from all parts of the valley.

SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENCY CONTEST.

The Madam Loses Two Votes on the First Day's Count.

The election contest commenced in the Superior Court of this county by Fannie McG. Martin is now under full headway in Judge Dougherty's department.

It will be recollected that the old lady, after being defeated for a nomination before the Republican Convention by Mr. E. W. Davis, seceded from her party and ran independent. The result was that she was defeated by Mr. Davis by 379 votes. Disappointed and chagrined at the result she claimed that she had been counted out and Mr. Davis counted in by the friends of that "horrid man," hence the suit.

On Wednesday last a recount of the ballots commenced before Judge Dougherty, who has appointed as tally clerks W. S. Coulter, R. L. Thompson and F. G. Nagle, whose duty it is to string the ballots.

Mrs. Martin is represented by her attorneys Gil P. Hall and T. J. Butts, who ought not to be engaged in such senseless proceedings.

Ten precincts were counted the first day, to-wit: Seven in Santa Rosa, Agua Caliente, Mendocino and South Sebastopol.

In Agua Caliente precinct A. C. Abshire, the Democratic nominee, gained one vote. Mr. Davis or Mrs. Martin, however, neither gained or lost a vote in that precinct.

Some other changes occurred in the other precincts, but at the close of the day's count Mrs. Martin was two votes behind the official returns.

The proceedings will be continued from day to day until every precinct in the county is recounted. The count will probably be finished next Monday. Of course the contestant is on a wild goose chase and has not a ghost of a show in overcoming Mr. Davis' big majority. She will be lucky indeed if she does not loose more votes than she gaines.

GLEN ELLEN.

The weather has been very disagreeable of late.

Salmon and wild ducks are plentiful in this vicinity.

The gasoline engine recently purchased by George Beatty has been placed in position.

Christmas boughs and berries are now ornamenting the fronts of some of our business houses.

The two little children of J. W. Brand, who have been ill for some time with scarlet fever, are improving.

Wm. Earnest, who has been rusticating at the Mervyn the past few months, has returned to San Francisco.

Postmaster Poppe reports a rush in the postal business owing to the near approach of the holidays.

An entertainment and hop will be given at Native Sons Hall next Saturday evening by a traveling company.

Mine host Harrison will give a social hop at Mervyn Hall Christmas Eve. Good music has been engaged and a good time is anticipated.

REMINGTON.

Glen Ellen, Dec. 20th, 1894.

Mr. J. P. Blaize, an extensive real estate dealer in Des Moines, Iowa, narrowly escaped one of the severest attacks of pneumonia while in the northern part of that State during a recent blizzard, says the Saturday Review. Mr. Blaize had occasion to drive several miles during the storm and was so thoroughly chilled that he was unable to get warm and inside of an hour after his return he was threatened with a severe case of pneumonia or lung fever. Mr. Blaize sent to the nearest drug store and got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, of which he had often heard, and took a number of large doses. He says the effect was wonderful and in a short time he was breathing quite easily. He kept on taking the medicine and the next day was able to come to Des Moines. Mr. Blaize regards his cure as simply wonderful. For sale by all dealers. *

Water on the hair is apt to make it look rusty, to turn it gray and to give it a bad odor. If you are threatened with dryness of the scalp and if you are obliged to wet your hair in order to make it stay in place, a little vaseline rubbed in the roots will be beneficial.

If your furniture is dull and needs its luster restored, try a polish made from two parts of raw linseed oil and one of turpentine. Mix thoroughly by shaking, apply a thin coat with a flannel cloth and rub thoroughly and briskly with a dry cloth. This polish is used by furniture dealers.

Soft spread toast—Toast the bread and spread it while it is hot. Have ready half a pint of hot milk or water, dip the toast in it very quickly so that it may not soak too much, but merely to moisten it. Dry toast should never be laid one slice upon another, but set on the edge in a toast rack to keep dry.

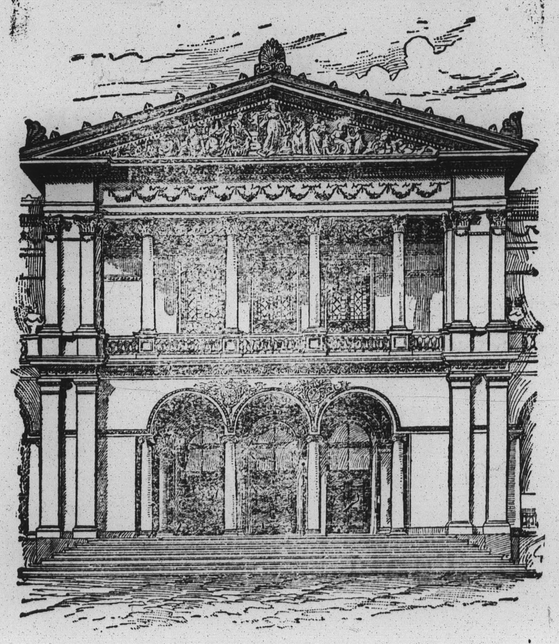
The Woman's Era.



Within Her Sphere She Reigns Supreme.

Woman claims her own. Her field widens constantly. Every day brightens her prospects. Her progress foreshadows the greater triumph at hand. Emancipation and equality will be hers in the years to come.

Prophetic of final victory were her achievements at the World's Fair. At her shrine there erected the nations bowed. The lesson taught at the "Woman's Building" will last "till time shall be no more." Their enlightening influence will be felt around the globe throughout the dawning century.

Only less memorable were the honors gained at the Fair by

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

SONOMA, SATURDAY, DEC. 22, 1894.

BRIGHTY'S PRESENCE OF MIND.

It Saves Many Lives In the Trainload of Sleeping Passengers.

Harry J. Brighty, night yardmaster of the Big Four railroad, has well earned a place in the galaxy of heroes. To him are due credit, honor and praise for saving the lives of a score and perhaps a hundred passengers last night. At the same place and under similar circumstances an accident occurred a little more than a year ago that resulted in the death of several persons. In that instance, as in this, a runaway train was the cause of the horror. Destructive as was the frightful wreck in May, 1893, it is apparent to every one familiar with the circumstances that it would have been rendered insignificant in comparison with that of last night but for the promptness of one man.

The stillness of the night was suddenly disturbed by a roar that may be likened to the approach of a raging cyclone. From the southeast it approached with almost lightninglike rapidity, the ominous rumble filling the sleeping valley with tumult and awakening thunderous reverberations on the frowning bluffs beyond. The grim men with lanterns flitting about the yard were not slow at divining the cause. The human night owls—hackmen, policemen and hotel runners—were quick to grasp the ominous significance of the roar that was awakening the echoes and increasing in fury as it came nearer and nearer, like a mighty monster mad and bent on destruction. They appreciated the fact that the horrible rumble was the warning of a runaway train. Most of them had passed through one experience of the kind, and they were quick to recall the fate of companions whose lives had been crushed out on the spot where they then stood.

A monster locomotive stood just outside the station building, the glare of its headlight penetrating the gloom to the south, from whence came the thundering noise. Behind the panting engine was a long train of coaches, in which 200 or more passengers were peacefully sleeping, unconscious that they were even then almost in the very jaws of death. The night owls, keenly sensitive of their danger, fled in wild confusion, all but one escaping. The situation at that moment was awful to contemplate. But one man stood between the hundreds of sleeping passengers and eternity. They were in a veritable deathtrap. But a few paces to the rear was the yawning river. In front and dangerously near was the runaway train, rushing on with the velocity of a whirlwind and gathering momentum at every rail length as it sped down from the hilltops. No human agency was powerful enough to check the velocity of the swiftly turning wheels. The men about the station who appreciated the situation were almost palsied with fear. The passenger train seemed to be inevitably doomed to destruction.

But there was one man there with a cool head and with nerves of steel. That man was Harry Brighty. There was not a moment to be lost. Thoroughly familiar with the intricate system of tracks in the yards, he rushed to a switch. Before a watch could have ticked a dozen times the runaway train would be upon the sleeping passengers. That would have meant death to all of them. In his anxiety to reach the switch Harry Brighty fell. The accident was almost fatal. But, rolling over, bruised and almost frenzied, he threw the switch just in the nick of time. A second later the runaway train passed with a mighty roar. A high embankment of earth at the end of the switch offered but little resistance. The heavily laden cars sped on, cutting through the stone and brick walls of the station building, passing through and across the street, leaving a passageway through the masonry from roof to foundation, cut as with a knife. A most disastrous wreck it was, but it is almost providential that it was not worse. But for Harry Brighty's thoughtfulness and promptness the deathtrap would have been converted into a veritable slaughter house.—Lafayette Courier.

HUNTING, FORSOOTH!

The Movement In England to Stop the Cruelties of Misnamed "Sportsmen."

The Royal Buckhounds have commenced the season of hunting the tame deer in Windsor park and the adjacent country, although over a year ago the government promised to consider the advisability of abolishing this misnamed sport, and although the queen herself is known to regard it with anything but favor. The Humanitarian league has again taken up the subject, and to Lord Rosebery will shortly be presented a petition in favor of the prohibition not only of tame stag hunting, but of all kinds of so called sport other than fair hunting.

The practices aimed at by the petitioners include pigeon shooting and coursing hares and rabbits within inclosures. The petition is signed by 9,000 humanitarians, headed by George Meredith, the novelist, and the list contains the names of all the best known poets, artists, writers and dreamers, with a good mixture of practical politicians like Timothy Healy and John Burns.—London Letter.

May Be a Specific For Consumption.

Dr. V. C. Vaughan, dean of the University of Michigan's medical faculty, believes that he has discovered a certain specific for tuberculosis. The product is called nuclein and was but recently made. The doctor has just returned from the great international congress of hygiene at Budapest, where he read a paper on his discovery which attracted great attention. He has not proceeded far enough in his experiments to declare that nuclein will absolutely prevent tuberculosis in men, but he has proved that it will in animals. Albert A. Watson, a senior law student from Detroit, has tried the nuclein. In nine months he gained 12 pounds and seems entirely cured.—Ann Arbor (Mich.) Letter.
